

Trine 2™ available now on XBLA, PSN, PC, Mac Launch met with great success

Helsinki, Finland – 23 December 2011 – Finnish game developer Frozenbyte is delighted to announce that Trine 2 is now available on Xbox LIVE® Arcade for the Xbox 360 video game and entertainment system from Microsoft, and PlayStation®Network in North America for the PlayStation®3 computer entertainment system, making Trine 2 now available on all platforms, including PC and Mac that were released previously.

Frozenbyte CEO, Lauri Hyvärinen: “Trine 2 has been met with great success and we are excited! XBLA and PSN sales look very strong so far, and on Steam we have sold 5 times more units than the original Trine did at launch. Most importantly, we are extremely happy that the reception from gamers and the press has been universally positive, and we are getting huge amounts of fanmail. I hope gamers continue to enjoy the game!”

Hyvärinen also had the following to say to European fans eagerly awaiting the PSN release, and to Australian XBLA fans: “We hope that the game will launch in Europe and Australia – and indeed our own home country Finland – as soon as possible! The release is out of our hands so right now we can only offer our condolences, but we are extremely sorry that things didn’t work out for a truly simultaneous worldwide release. We will let you know as soon as we have any real information, please be sure to check our Community Forums at <http://frozenbyte.com/board/> or get in touch by email.”

Trine 2 is priced at $14.99/12.99 euros or 1200 MSP, and available now on Steam for PC/Mac, the Mac App Store, Xbox LIVE® Arcade for the Xbox 360 video game and entertainment system from Microsoft, and PlayStation®Network in North America for the PlayStation®3 computer entertainment system.
